LAWYER 'lied to jury'

WASHINGTON, AUG. 14

A grand jury in New Orleans, Louisiana, today found a local attorney, Mr. Dean Andrews, guilty on three counts of perjury in connexion with the investigation being carried out by the district attorney, Mr. Jim Garrison, into the Kennedy assassination.

Mr. Andrews was the first person to be tried as a result of Mr. Garrison's controversial investigation, and today's decision is the first time that anyone who had been called as a witness before the Warren Commission has subsequently been convicted of perjury.

The charges against Mr. Andrews were that he lied to the grand jury last March when he stated that he could not tell whether it was Mr. Clay Shaw, a prominent businessman, who, using the name Clay Bertrand, telephoned to him in November, 1963, and asked him to represent Lee Harvey Oswald in Dallas.

Another twist in the strange story of Mr. Garrison's investigation appears today in the latest issue of Newsweek magazine. According to the magazine, an official of the Teamsters' Union offered a National Broadcasting Corporation correspondent, Mr. Walter Sheriden—formerly an employee of the Justice Department—evidence to "ruin Garrison" if he would admit that he had once tapped the telephone of Mr. Jimmy Hoffa, the union's president.

Mr. Hoffa is at present serving a gaol sentence for fraud, and, the story goes, such an admission on the part of Mr. Sheriden would be grounds for a new trial.
